SPRINGFIELD---THE HISTORIC CITY

HOME of Abraham Lincoln and other men whose names are illustrious in the annals of Illinois. Here in 1861, Gen. U. S. Grant begun his military career as Colonel of the Twenty-first Illinois Infantry in the great Civil War. Here the eloquent voice of Stephen A. Douglas has been heard in legal argument and political debate. In the State Capitol buildings laws have been made that have helped in the progress of Illinois from the frontier State to one of the greatest commonwealths of the Nation.

The town of Springfield was founded more than a century ago, and was at first a straggling prairie village, where the wild beast and the Red man fought with the pioneers for possession. Since that day development has been rapid. The traveling preacher came, with his axe, his saddle-bags and his Bible. The itinerant schoolmaster has given place to graded schools and high schools. Stately churches of all denominations invite the people to praise and prayer. Manufacturing plants give employment to the people.

The descendants of the pioneers, and those citizens who came later enjoy all the advantages of a progressive, modern city. The village of 1821 has become the city of 1923.

FAREWELL ADDRESS.

MY FRIENDS: NO ONE, NOT IN MY SITUATION, CAN APPRECIATE MY FEELING OF SADNESS AT THIS PARTING. TO THIS PLACE. AND THE KINDNESS OF THESE PEOPLE, I OWE EVERYTHING. HERE I HAVE LIVED A QUARTER OF A CENTURY, AND HAVE PASSED FROM A YOUNG TO AN OLD M.A.N. HERE MY CHILDREN HAVE BEEN BORN, AND ONE IS BURIED. I NOW LEAVE, NOT KNOWING WHEN OR WHETHER EVER I MAY RETURN WITH A TASK BEFORE ME GREATER THAN THAT WHICH RESTED UPON WASHINGTON. WITHOUT THE ASSISTANCE OF THAT DIVINE BEING WHO EVER ATTENDED HIM, I CANNOT SUCCEED. WITH THAT ASSISTANCE, I CANNOT FAIL. TRUSTING IN HIM WHO CAN GO WITH ME, AND REMAIN WITH YOU, AND BE EVERYWHERE FOR GOOD, LET US CONFIDENTLY HOPE THAT ALL WILL YET BE WELL. TO HIS CARE COMMENDING YOU, AS I HOPE IN YOUR PRAYERS YOU WILL COMMEND ME, I BID YOU AN AFFECTIONATE FAREWELL.

FOREWORD

SPRINGFIELD, the capital of Illinois since so created by act of legislature in 1837, was founded in 1819, and lies in the heart of the Great Middlewest, in the center of the vast agricultural and coal producing regions. It is a city of 60,000 people within the city limits, 75,000 including contiguous settlements, and is constantly growing and expanding.

As a place to be called "The City in which I Live" it is unusually attractive, with its thousand acres of park lands, including two of the most beautiful parks in the United States, one of them named for Lincoln and one for Washington, and five hundred acres recently acquired for future park cultivation; its beautifully developed residence sections, where are to be found some of the loveliest homes in America; its $5,000,000 system of public and parochial schools, private seminaries and excellent business colleges; the splendid educational advantages of its fine city and state libraries; its fifty-eight churches valued at $1,789,000; its finely operating form of commission government; its position as seat of the Sangamon county government; as the seat of the state government with the beautiful state buildings including the magnificent new Illinois Centennial Building among its show places; its importance as the location of the Federal Court and United States District Court officials; its manufacturing and industrial facilities of a hundred or more factories of varied nature furnishing occupation to 10,000 people, and the great many other advantages which it offers to progressive and public spirited men and women citizens.

Four outstanding advantages which command attention point to the desirability of Springfield as a home and business center: Springfield has the lowest priced coal in the United States, due to the fact that it lies in the heart of Illinois' great coal fields, eliminating transportation costs. It has the lowest power and electric rates in the United States, outside the hydro-electric field, with the amazingly low rate of one and one-half cents per K.W.H. or less according to consumption. It has also the lowest water rate in Illinois, proven by all available statistics and by actual working costs. And it has unexcelled transportation facilities with seven of the great trunk railroads which traverse this immense agricultural area leading into the city, and with surface lines of the most progressive type within the city itself.

Financially Springfield has one of the soundest and most progressive banking systems in the country, headed by men of integrity and true citizenship, nine great institutions with massed resources of more than $35,000,000, with industrial banks in workingmen's districts and loan associations with assets of $4,500,000 for the benefit of its people.

The splendid civic spirit of the city is manifested in its progressive Chamber of Commerce with 2,000 working members, its six men's clubs, its advanced and active clubs for women, its splendidly efficient Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., and its one hundred and thirty-eight fraternal societies. Its fine hotels offer the visitors homes, and its clubs provide them places of recreation, its excellent theatres entertainment. It will soon be the home also of one of the most magnificent Masonic cathedrals in America, plans for which are now being drawn.

Not the least outstanding in point of Springfield's desirability as a residence and business location is the City Zoning and Planning Commission with the great City Plan which has been proposed and adopted and which will set Springfield in the foreground of America's proud list of cities of beauty and distinction.

And then there is Springfield's own Hall of Fame which contains illustrious names of men who have done things and whom the world recognizes. Not alone that of the Immortal Lincoln, but America's great poet, Nicholas Vachel Lindsay; its great novelist, Edgar Lee Masters, accorded one of ten outstanding world writers; its great statesman and writer, Brand Whitlock, former Minister to Belgium; that minister and essayist, Dr. Frank Crane, and that Lincoln historian and writer of charm, Henry B. Rankin, are names which have added proud luster to Springfield.

As a World Shrine, because of the World Beloved Lincoln, as the capital of the great commonwealth of Illinois, and as a metropolis of the great Middlewest, Springfield welcomes the traveler and visitor, whence he may come, wherever he may go.

THE SCHOOLS OF SPRINGFIELD

IN the year 1914 the Springfield Board of Education together with a group of interested citizens invited the Russell Sage Foundation to make a survey of the Springfield schools and offer recommendations for a future program.

Since then it has been the policy of each successive Board of Education to work toward the objectives set forth in this Survey with the gratifying result that the Springfield schools now rank with the most progressive schools in the country.

Of the twenty buildings used for school purposes all are in excellent repair, while fifteen are comparatively new and built according to the latest standard school requirements. All of the buildings except one are provided with auditoriums, shops, and special rooms.

The senior High School completed in the year 1917 represented at that time an investment of $450,000. A recent valuation placed the estimate at $1,000,000 for building and equipment. The total valuation of school property amounts to approximately $5,000,000. The annual cost of school administration is around $1,000,000, while the assessed valuation of the school district is a little over $30,000,000.

Nearly 12,000 children are enrolled in the schools for the year 1922-23. These 12,000 children are educated in a system of schools comprising kindergartens in every district, eighteen elementary schools, one central junior high school, and one senior high school. The educational staff consists of 350 members, not including nurses and special teachers in special departments such as visiting teacher, and teachers for ungraded rooms, and supervisors.

Supervised study is maintained in the senior high and junior high institutions, while upper grade work in the elementary schools has been departmentalized. For the past ten years the schools have been gradually modernized so that the system now holds a conspicuous place among the schools of the middle west.
